CUNT STOCKINGS
	iiNet embedded a two-frame message in their latest television advertisement. The message appears for less than one tenth of a second and can only be read when the TV is paused. The text contains a URL and the first 100 to visit the page were given a free iiNet gift pack and given the chance to win 1 of 5 iPad's. Smart? Yes, but the ACMA did sting iiNet for the message.	http://www.smh.com.au/technology/technology-news/iinets-easter-egg-may-breach-subliminal-ad-rules-20111026-1mj4a.html
	Has your brand new shiny iPhone 4S been experiencing battery draining issues? Well, your not alone. Apple have been contacting new iPhone 4S users to gather data from them. A senior Apple engineer has admitted to a customer that there is an issue with the phones and that they are working on a fix.	http://www.gizmodo.com.au/2011/10/apple-puzzled-by-iphone-4s-battery-sucking-issues/
	And Facebook will soon be storing your data in a nice cool location. Facebook's new datacenter in Sweden, just 60 miles from the Article Circle, the new datacenter will use the weather to cool it down during 8 months of the year. Pretty Cool? Not really - Google already have a datacenter in the same location. The upside to this is that European visitors will have faster access to Facebook.	http://www.dailymail.co.uk/sciencetech/article-2054168/Facebook-unveils-massive-data-center-Lulea-Sweden.html
